Latino students are underrepresented and underperforming, yet critical to Arizona’s future. If we reduced the Latino dropout rate by half, the additional graduates would earn $31 million, which translates to an additional $23 million in spending annually.

16% of teaching workforce is Latino
The Pandemic’s Impact
There was a lack of communication from school systems in both English and Spanish formats.

There was a lack of access to technology in the form of devices and reliable internet.

Parents did not feel supported and were ill-prepared for at-home learning.

Families faced employment and financial challenges.

Families were concerned about special education, English Learners, and other at-risk student populations falling further behind.
PEA offers an introductory leadership development program for caregivers that want to strengthen their skills to better support their students in navigating the virtual and classroom learning environment, the school system, and have agency over decisions that affect their families and communities.
The school systems identified for the pilot must:

- Serve high concentrations of Latino, Black and Native families
- Demonstrate a strong commitment to the advancement of equity in Arizona, including taking the ALL In for Equity Pledge
- Majority of the student population qualifies for the federal Free-or-Reduced Priced Lunch (FRPL) program
